HERITAGE WITH A NEW BEGINNING

When the first Hatteras splashed in 1959 it forever changed what the world could expect from a sportfishing boat. In fact, the Knit Wits was the first fiberglass boat over 40'. From this landmark beginning, innovation and performance have informed every chapter of Hatteras' storied history.

This legacy—and the pride and craftsmanship upon which it has been built—was central to our purchase of Hatteras. When the White River Marine Group bought the brand in May of 2021, we welcomed one of the finest teams of boat builders in the world. We also welcomed a proud history of innovation—one that matches our own.

We are hard at work charting the next chapter of Hatteras. Full of pride and optimism, it is our commitment that what comes next can influence the industry as profoundly as the first Hatteras once did. This is what we mean by, "Heritage with a new beginning."

DEFINING PERFORMANCE AND INNOVATION—FOR MORE THAN 60 YEARS.

LET'S CUT TO THE CHASE. LITERALLY.

"Getting there" is at the heart of the offshore adventure. The Hatteras ride—dry, comfortable, and fast— has set the industry standard for more than six decades. This legendary performance instills confidence that the open-water experience will always be a good one. Week in. Week out. Whether the mission is defined by prize money or pride. Every Hatteras is engineered to thrive in glassy conditions or in the kind of unfavorable conditions that makes other boats reluctant to venture out at all.

Our confidence comes from on-the-water experience. For 60-plus years, Hatteras engineering teams have been advancing the perfect formula of weight, speed and hull design. Captains and crews feel the difference every time a Hatteras leaves the harbor. It's the kind of difference that allows you to chart your own course — confident in the ability to handle rough seas in comfort. That kind of confidence is worth its weight in billfish.

GT59

Watch. It's the night before the start of a tournament. Boaters at the marina stop and stare at the GT59, with a distinct look of admiration for the team that will call this sleek convertible "home" for the weekend. The most sensible anglers know it's impossible to overstate the value of a comfortable ride out to the fishing grounds without pounding through each wave. Or the importance of stress-free boat handling. Or the beauty of being able to stretch out in wide-open living spaces after the fish have been boated and the rods have been secured.

Hatteras builds the GT59 with an acute understanding of tournament life in mind. The designers are fishermen, too, so they refine every detail for the best possible experience — and then re-refine it. The result? The most reliable seakeeping and most comfortable ride in this class, with a commitment to forward-thinking technology. No wonder so many people stand in awe of the Hatteras GT59.
